

Expansion Plans for Chevron

Chevron Cars Limited have recently taken the first steps in an exciting programme of expansion.

Chevron have appointed Courage Classic – based in Le Mans – as their exclusive distributor of Chevron spare parts and continuation cars in France.

Chevron Marketing Director, Tim Colman, said “Whilst Chevron is a global brand with a fantastic racing pedigree, Yves Courage is a legend in French racing circles. All of our discussions with Yves and his team have been very positive and we share a passion for historic racing”

Yves Courage said “I have personal experience of racing Chevrons but more recently have been known for the Courage cars. Now I can bring all of my knowledge together to support Chevron owners in France. Everyone at Courage Classic is looking forward to working with Roger and Tim at Chevron”.

Meanwhile Chevron have appointed Kelvin Jones of Kelvin Jones Motorsport as the Chevron Production Director. Kelvin previously worked on behalf of Chevron – whilst under the control of Chris Smith – in assembling continuation models. Kelvin will work closely with Chevron Managing Director Roger Andreason in restoration projects as well as producing the Chevron continuation cars.

Kelvin said “I am delighted to have been invited to join the board of Chevron Cars and this will formalise the way I have been working with Chevron over the past 4 years”.

Roger Andreason added “Kelvin and I have a massive knowledge of the Chevron products – not only sports cars but single seaters as well. Bringing this experience together will be of great benefit to Chevron owners across the world. We will also compliment each others’ skills as we produce the continuation cars.”

The Chevron Cars Limited management are investing heavily in increasing stocks of spare parts for the more common models and have also started construction of a batch of Chevron B8, B16 and B19 continuation models – fully compliant with FIA FTP regulations.
